In passing through this world we all wish to be happy. Ask a young man as he emerges from boyhood into manhood if passing through this world of trouble and of care he wishes to live in peace and happiness.
 He will answer yes, that is most true of his heart. Any man in carrying out his ambitious schemes and perpetrating deeds of the blackest dye in order to do so acquire happiness. And you will yet find the man lost to his happiness. See a young man who has by his industry and honesty amassed an ample fortune. He now begins to seek out a partner for life. He at last finds a fair and beautiful flower of nature.
 In a short time they are united and it is now that he expects to have pleasure, be happy.
 He is now a changed man. He has entered life anew. He cannot go to a ball or a party without being watched by a vigilant eye.

He cannot enjoy many a pleasure that he formerly could. One year after year his troubles increase. He is now an old man surrounded by a family of children sons and daughters some of his sons marry against his will and thus grieve their father's delight. But what crosses him deeper than all is the manner in which young men hover about his house some of his daughters leave him to day some tomorrow. He is doing his best to keep them, but of course they go like a flock of sheep where one goes all the rest will follow. While the old man and his family of despair wishes he had remained single himself. If he had what a vast amount of trouble it would have saved him. He got the land and some property, retire to rest when he liked or rise when he liked. He had no one to labour for but himself, no one to care but himself, he can enjoy himself any way he likes. He is decidedly the happiest man.

Our opponents may say that we have a man married for love to a woman who is a virgin at all, I admit that, my self my self, but how many we have married for love and yet, it were better for them to be single. There is in the married state a man who goes down to a drunkard's and all those men die drunkards without destroying the peace and happiness of many amiable women. without destroying the happiness of their own family. So, it would say they do not. If you examine the whole paper you will find a sample of this sort.
 We will not have been better than those men who were married for love. We would not have married a virgin. We would not the thing before the eyes of the world.
 I predict that the whole of the world will be the abundance of the world.

 The married life has been painted up with all the most all charming colours by poets and novelists. But it, is only imagination. When you read of any of our poets or novelists enjoy themselves in the married life the most of the picture before they were any time together.
 But, of course they are a pleasant all part for on the wings of imagination they soar where they never could go. Then it is such, and by the apparent happiness happening the married life kind have not the same state with a moment's consideration

His work has gone his labour is now commenced but he had no one to please which he found difficult, but now he has got some one to please himself and some one else who is twice as difficult. When I was the master of the ship "The Queen"

On the 18th day of January last, a few minutes before 2 O'clock in the morning a number of young men in a state of Intoxication broke into the house of Mr. I. and took there from $400 in bank notes and $100 in Gold. The parties are not yet known. We hope that the law will act with justice towards the offenders, the offenders being very prevalent.

It is reported which the world can hardly supposing an animal life. For the
with all its rich minerals of gold and silver and all its precious stones. In fact, nothing goes for the nourishment of man's least.
Place than for a species of plants cover the surface of the earth, some affording food for man some for animals. Tobacco is a dreadful curse to the Company which it has brought such lovely things. Company Company Company suppose that there have been created solely for our enjoyment. The grass in the East and West Indies, and the other things, which it is said a vegetable called the tobacco plant as a high of will grow short time and then it is a thing of man, had adapted to his use and brought in very profitable and the tobacco plant he has done much away. There is nothing charming in its appearance and very pleasant in its taste. But the of its use is a very profitable thing that it must be left as a pleasure

It is used in variety of forms with which you are all acquainted. When you feel harassed & guarded with the effects of this poison used you must think that it is not to be used from its use in society. But the evils which it produces are indelible. It destroys the mental as well as physical faculties.
And casts a shade as if there were the abilities which have been bestowed upon us by the God of nature. It obscures the luster of our accomplishments, and finds us down in a deplorable condition almost in a word, the inferior animals. We will from now onwards direct our attention to very frequent use of tobacco among the young and the effect it has on them. Go into any town or village in Virginia and you will find 2 of the young men indulging in this deprecated habit. Go into any of our colleges and there you will find one half of the students using tobacco. Many of them commence this habit before their course of course
has commenced its study.

He will follow the student as he pursues his way through college his tobacco in one hand and his books in the other. It is now that his imagination begins to work. He can now smoke tobacco with any man in a few years he thinks he will aspire to the highest dignities in the State.
He will in a few years acquire his property and rival all his competitors and after he has amassed and immense fortune he will retire from the noise and bustle of the world and end his days in peace and quietude. But Sir this anticipation is not realization. He commenced tobacco when he was young before ^{his} mind or his ability had reached their strength. Mark the result. He is growing restless and is becoming tired of himself. He has no any subject as he could before. He has through a kind of habit acquired his property and now he is thrown on his own resources for him, as he brings about his office, now his imagination is wandering along the same old path

[illegible]

And I would a Say do the ladies all the day to be useful, doable, yet they can have a great influence over those that do if ever young lady in the list of St Marys was the rock of the young young man that was doable. There some it is disappeared, yes Sir at the morning she dispersed by the rising sun so would the arc of doable and all the young lady's disposition I am sure it is not a manly habit what you are a lot of people that do he continues a being or eating rather doable. He sent a bag of doable to the field or any den of the animal an doable he will devour it eaten on the same as a man. And I would a man learn a lesson from the beast which created to rule over. When they are created they are endowed with an instinct which they never get their mind went astray from and I would a man with reasoning faculties and a great ability bring himself on a level with the beasts of field and below them but should be bring himself who was created so high as he is to be so low and so forgetting that he is a creature of God

The North American Indians used to drink the so as to get what ever they might be.

 But this I would say as sure as I am is that

 of care he wishes to live in peace and happiness.
 amassed a ample fortune. He now begins
 a fair and beautiful flower of nature.
 that he expects to have pleasure, be happy.
 being watched by a vigilant eye.

He cannot enjoy many a pleasure that he formerly could. One year after year his trouble increases. He is now an old man surrounded by a family of children sons and daughters some his sons marry against his will and thus grieve their father's delight. But what crosses his temper worst of all is the manner in which young men hover about his house some of his daughters leave him to day some tomorrow. He is doing his best to keep them, but of course as they get like a flock of sheep when one goes all the rest will follow. While the old man his family of despair wishes he had remained a single man. If he had what a vast amount of trouble it would have saved him. He got he liked and some perhaps retire to rest when he liked or rise when he liked. He had no one to labour for but himself, no one to care but himself, he can enjoy himself any way he likes. He is decidedly the happiest man

 paper you will find a sample of this sort.
 We will not have been better for those men
 the thing before the eyes of the world.
 will be the abundance of the world.

 with all sorts of charming colours by poets and novelists, but it is only imagination. No man reads of any of our poets or novelists enjoy happiness in the married life the most of the poets before they were any time together.
 But, of course they are a pleasant all part
 such, and by the apparent happiness of the the married life kind have not seen the state with a more momentary consideration

William Wade Rouse

When I saw the man I thought I was On the 18th day of January last, a few minutes before 2 O'clock in the morning a number of young men in a state of Intoxication broke into the house of Mr. I. and took there from $400 in bank notes and $100 in Gold. The parties are not yet known. We hope that the law will act with justice towards the offenders, the offenders being very prevalent.

B Before Come Deaf

surface of the earth, some affording food for man Some Country which all are adorned with such lovely flowers. Country In that we might
for our enjoyment. In the east and West Indies, and in the other ships of war shades a vegetable called the tobacco plant as high as will grow short time seen around ships. The Spaniards of war had adapted it to be used as a vegetable in every vegetable; but in the tobacco plant he has done much
of its use. It is a very profitable article that is much to be used as a pleasure.

It is used in variety of forms with which
harassed & wearied with the efforts of this passion used & you want to think that it is not to be taken from its use in society. But the evils which it produces are indelible. It destroys
the mental as well as physical faculties.
And casts a shade as if there were the abilities
in a deplorable condition almost in a bed with the inferior animals. We will from
students using tobacco. Many of them
commence this habit before their course
of course
has commenced its study.

aspire to the highest dignities in the State.
when he was young before ^{his} mind was fully developed. Mark the result. He is growing restless and is unable to find any subject as he could before. He has
through a kind of habit acquired his property
and now he is thrown on his own resources
his imagination is wandering along the same old path

[illegible]

And I find it would a day do the labor all the day the most useful labor, yet they can have a great influence over those that do it even young lady in the list of St Marys was the only person the young man that was the laborer there some of the laborers disappeared, yet in the morning were dispersed by the rising sun so would the labor of tobacco and all the other business habits disappear for I am sure it is not a manly habit what you see in a lot of people that they do continue a peeping or eating rather than do the continuous a lot of tobacco to the field or any demonstration the animal in a habit he will devour it eaten up on the same habit as man. And I find a man learn a lesson from the beast which created to rule over. When they are created created they are endowed with an instinct which they never get their mind went astray from and I find man ends
being himself in a level with the birds of field eye below them but should be being himself low who was created so high as he is today he is and is forgetting that he is created as he is

 tobacco but I never could get the thing to them so as to get what ever they might be.
 But this I would say as sure as I am is that the more will of tobacco & beer, & tobacco & beer other intoxicating & vulgar & impure his whole
